

Tracking Legal

Atemos™, Astro® and Alpha® tracking handhelds and DC™, K, KT, T and TT™ dog devices use radio technology to detect the location of dogs in their environment. The use of radio equipment is subject to various national regulations. Atemos, Astro and Alpha tracking handhelds and DC, K, KT, T and TT dog devices are generally approved for sales in other countries under CE industry standards. The use of this equipment is only allowed in some countries on specific frequencies. See chart below for countries where use of Atemos, Alpha and Astro tracking handhelds and DC, K, KT, T and TT dog devices is allowed:

Important information concerning customers who use U.S. models of Alpha/TT and Astro/DC outside of the United States:

The radio communication frequencies used by U.S. models of Astro and Alpha tracking handhelds and DC, T and TT dog devices are not authorized for use outside of the United States. To ensure compliance with local laws, the radio function that allows the dog collar products to communicate with the handheld device will be rendered inoperable when used outside of the United States.

The products listed below are shipping with this modification. For products sold before this modification is implemented, the radio function will be rendered inoperable with future updates of those products' firmware or software.
